CHURCH FAMILY - PRAISES AND CONCERNS

Persons With Health Needs

BTHC: Jake (Anne) Dyck, Betty Reimer

Church Prayer & Praise

Words cannot express the gratitude I/we feel towards you – our beloved church family. As you know, I've been on a journey – definitely not of my choosing. However, we know that everything happens for a reason. Cancer is a respecter of no one – as we've discovered. My prognosis in the very beginning was not good at all, but have been able to enjoy the last 2 years virtually pain free.

These past 2 months have not been easy ones (including hospitalization), but with God's help we have been able to weather this storm. Psalm 23 has become very dear to my heart and realize that you, our family have been walking this valley with us. Thank-you from the bottom of our hearts for all the prayers, well wishes, visits and food.

May you all be richly rewarded someday. Irene & Henry Neufeld

Jake (Anne) Dyck has been admitted to Boundary Trails Hospital and is in palliative care. Pray for peace of mind for Jake, Anne and the family as Jake's journey, here on earth, is coming to an end.

Mission Prayer & Praise

Quotes for the Week

So don't let life's challenges overwhelm you. Next time you gaze up at the stars, remember that you truly have a Friend in high places. Face today's problems with today's God-given strength and wisdom. Don't spend time or energy worrying about future troubles. Some of them won't even come about. And with the others, God will provide for you when the time is right. Remember that God's guidance is a light unto our feet, not a high-intensity spotlight that penetrates miles into the future.

(2013). Daily grace for teens. Colorado Springs, CO: David C Cook.

God will provide all our needs. What if we really believed that? Scarcity teaches us to fend for ourselves. The idea that God will provide contradicts our scarcity instincts. This is where we must confront scarcity with truth. If God's Word is true, our scarcity fears are not. If God will provide all our needs, there is enough. God is enough, and God will provide enough. When we recognize that who God has created us to be and the work he has given us to do are enough, we can lay aside our attempts at hoarding and protecting and trust everything to his care.

Catron, J. (2014). Clout: discover and unleash your god-given influence. Nashville: Thomas Nelson.

Many Christians fall into the trap of inactivity. Many Christians ask God for help, but then expect God to do everything Himself. They excuse this by pointing to the fact that God will provide according to His will and in His timing. However, this is not a reason for inactivity. As a specific example, if you are in need of a job, ask the Lord to help you find a job—but then be active in actually looking for a job. While it is in His power to do so, it is highly unlikely that God will cause employers to come looking for you!
