Quotes

THE need of divine guidance is never more deeply felt than when one undertakes to give instruction in the work of the Holy Spirit—so unspeakably tender is the subject, touching the inmost secrets of God and the soul's deepest mysteries.

Kuyper, A. (1900). The work of the Holy Spirit (p. 3). Funk & Wagnalls.

Some have theorized that the one sin that is unforgivable is the sin of "unbelief." That is to say that "unbelief" is the one sin that the blood of Jesus could not cover. Every other sin in the world can be forgiven, but if one fails to place one's faith in Jesus Christ and decides to remain in "unbelief"—then that sin of unbelief is not forgivable. It is a direct rebuff of the work of the Holy Spirit on one's heart.
